The fourth annual meeting of the Wyoming Association of Congregational churches was opened at 10 o'clock yesterday morning in the Plymouth Congregational church on Jackson street. The meeting was called to or-der by Moderator Rev. J. T. Mathews, of Old Forge, After devotional exersecretary, Rev. D. L. Davies, read the minutes of last year's meeting held at Mount Carmel. The moderator made an appeal to the delegates for arousing a greater amount of interest in these meetings. Rev. R. J. Rees, of Arnot, read a paper on "The Best Methods in Arousing Our People to Systematic Benevolence." His talk was a foreible one, and showed deep reasoning on the part of the speaker.

The Afternoon Session. The Afternoon Session.

During the noon recess the delegates shared the hospitality of the members of the church, and partook of dinner in the chapel room. At 2 o'clock business was resumed. Rev. Isaac Thomas, the newly elected moderator, occupied the chair. Devotional exercises and singing opened the session. The work of receiving the reports of the delegates was continued and a greater knowledge of the excellent work done by the Congregational churches was obtained. Some of the members spoke lengthly in favor of a new journal which has n favor of a new journal which has come into the religious field named "The Congregational Messenger." It

"The Congregational Messenger." It was thought that this district could be well represented by its influence.

A committee consisting of E. S. Davis, Davies, Howell Davies and Rev. E. J. Morris was appointed for missionary work. Rev. Thomas McKay, of Plymouth, spoke on the question of the best method of replenishing the ministerial ranks. He said that preachers should be educated to some degree and possess a consecrated mind. The importance of the Christian ministry can. ortance of the Christian ministry can-ot be over-estimated. It has been said not be over-estimated. It has been said that there are fewer young men than ever preparing for the ministry, but hoped this was untrue. In regard to replenishing the ranks he said that a clergyman is often obliged to work for smaller pay than a store clerk. At the same time he must be neatly attired and treat all his visitors liberally. If the young man enters college with the idea that he may become a bishop, or reach some other high and remuneraoffice, he is a wolf in sheeps clothing, and the sooner removed the better. The name of the prize seekers will sink into oblivion, while the meek shall be observed. I believe that young men should acquire the brightest intellect possible. We must familiarize our-selves with the religious questions of today. The Bible should be read thor-of God and righteousness. Rev. Howell Davies, of Lansford, gave a talk on the "Church and Kingdom; Are These Interchangeable Terms." Mr. Davies is a brilliant speaker. He likened the gospel of God from the kingdom as a revealed mostery. evealed mystery.

The afternoon session closed with a paper on the question. "Is the Church" Fulfilling its Mission." by Rev. Rev. E. J. Morris, of Wilkes-Barre. He rever case of typhoid fever and was at ferred to the church as the kingdom, ferred to the church as the kingdom, which is now in a state of imperfection and striving to become the real. The church is the body of Christ. The dis-ciples became the church of God, and the church must be made before we can tell what its mission is. COLLINGS CALLED OFF.

He Writes a Letter Declining to Be the Candidate of the People's Party for District Attorney

John B. Callings, who was nominated by the recent People's party county convention as its candidate for distric attorney, yesterday sent a letter to John J. Morgan, chairman of the convention that nominated him, declining to be the candidate of the party for district attorney.

The sudden desertion by Mr. Collings has caused some little consternation in the ranks of the People's party. Mr. Collings gives as his reasons for de-clining the nomination, that he is not ready as yet to depart company with the Democrats; that he does not be-lieve in government owsership of railroads, etc., and that John P. Kelly, the Demogratic candidate for district attor-

Most people would consider it a graceful act on the part of Mr. Kelly to retire in favor of his old preceptor, but Mr. Collings does not look at it in that light. John J. Morgan was seen last night by a Tribune reporter and said he was unable to ascribe any reason for withdrawal of Mr. Collings. "After the convention," continued Mr. Morgan, we were assured by Mr. Callings that he accepted the nomina-

Callings that he accepted the nomina-tion and was grateful for having re-ceived it. Less than ten days ago I talked with Mr. Collings about the campaign and he said nothing about withdrawing. He was quite enthusias-tic over the outlook and remarked that the only thing he feared was our Polish candidate from Olyphant would be per-suaded to leave the ticket. I certainly did not think, after what Mr. Collings said that day that he would be the first to leave us.

Will we name another candidate? I think not. While the matter has not been officially considered as yet it is my impression that the hole Mr. Callings hias left in the ticket will be left unfilled.

It was generally conceded that Mr. Collings would have injured Mr. Kelly to a great extent, as Mr. Collings has been a life long Democrat and at one time was the candidate of that party for district attorney. His letter shows that he has been induced to withdraw in the interests of Mr. Kelly.
